Eva

Not a stupid question at all. The operations team discussed this last week and will be performing a similar test at ST012.

I have a stupid question to ask of the TerraTherm team – I just got another round of ‘bucket test’ data for the Beede site, where they collected effluent from the MPE wells in a bucket to observe whether or not the effluent contains NAPL, and to get a qualitative evaluation of how much NAPL was extracted from that well. Can a screening test like this be done at ST-12 to aid in determining where we are getting the NAPL from now?

Thanks Eva
